3. Module description
Description	The aim of the course is to develop students' research skills within the humanities. Students broaden their knowledge in the areas covered by the curriculum and develop skills related to a selected methodology of conducting research in the humanities. The specific objective of the course is to improve students' research toolkit, basing on research methodologies selected with the teacher, including, in particular, the ability to work with scientific sources, the methodology of obtaining sources and data relevant for the selected discipline, synthetic preparation of sources and data, and presentation of results. The course involves students in the research conducted by academic staff or engages them in individual or group research projects proposed by the teacher.
Prerequisites	Successful completion of Diploma Module - Research project 1
